

Descriptive Wireframe Document

Rationale: First of all, I think the layout of the page is very confusing and I can't find useful information easily. I don't think it makes sense to put it at the top of all the options. For example, the font color and size chosen for the menu are also not uniform. The author chose four colors to use on this menu, which seems redundant. I think the color matching of web pages is very important. Whether the color matching of web pages is reasonable will directly affect the mood of visitors. Good color matching will bring a strong visual impact to visitors, while inappropriate color matching will make visitors restless. In the new webpage, considering that it is a webpage about a restaurant, I choose high-saturation colors. Adjacent color matching can avoid color clutter on the webpage, and it is easy to achieve the effect of harmony and unity on the page. At the same time, the font color and size are unified, which will reduce the visual interference to readers.

Second, in the old web pages, the author used a lot of image elements, to provide more readability. But in fact, there are too many images, which makes the web page look untidy and simple.

This site provides too much information and additional decoration, but it doesn't make people interested. I think some decorations can be removed properly, such as images, or change the text size and color to make the page look neat and clean.
